Brief Industrial Profile of Daman District

1. General Characteristics of the District

1.1 Location & Geographical Area.

From the 8th to 13th century, Daman and Diu , which was a part of Goa was a stronghold of the Chowda Rajput who were ousted by the Waghlas who in turns were expelled by Muslim in 1330. It continued under Muslim rule for another two hundred years till it was conquered by the Portuguese. The Portuguese ruled Goa 451 years (1510-1961).

Most worthy event occurred in connection with the liberation of Portuguese settlement – Operation Vijay . just before the midnight of December 16, 1961 ending the colonial rule. The different land blocks on the west coast of India . Daman Diu and Goa came to form one political unit after liberation from the erstwhile Portuguese regime in 1961. In 1987 , when Goa become a full fledged state, Daman and Diu was separated from Goa .

Daman – Geographical Area – 72 Square Km.

1.2 Topography –

Daman and Diu topography is a typical island topography , which does not exhibit a variety of landforms. There are a number of rivers that provides water to the territory of India .

Daman is one of the two districts of the union territory, which is located on the Indian west coast. The place is bordered by a variety of topographical features. The district of Valsad in Gujarat state lies towards the east, the well known river called Bhagwan flows towards the north, the Arabian Sea is located towards the west and River kalem flows towards the south.

The major river of the region Damanganga divides the Daman district into two separate parts. As many as three rivers provide water to the district. All these rivers flow towards the west direction. The river Bhagwan runs along the northern border of the district, the river kalem runs along the southern border and the river Damanganga runs in between the other two rivers.
